THE EVIDENCE A LITTLE TANGLED.

The fourth day of the trial of Policeman Edward Hahn for the killing of "Jack" Hussey was largely occupied by the closing speeches for prosecution and defence. The defendant was on the witness stand at the close of Wednesday's session and he was questioned yesterday by his own counsel, by Assistant District-Attorney Fel-lows and by Judge Cowing. Mr. Howe began by asking: Q.—At the time you fired the shot which took effect on Russey had you say intention to kill him! A.—No, sir. Q.—You had no quarrel with him! A.—No, sir. Q.—Had you heard of Hussey's assaulting other police officers! A.—Yes, sir.

Mr. Fellows asked:

Q. - Did you believe when you fred that shot that you were a danger of losing your life, or in great bodily harm? A.-In so great danger that you decided to take a human A.—No, sir; I did not.
You say that you aimed to hit Hussey in the leg! A.—sir.

sir.

-You are familiar enough with a pistol to know that the se of a bullet always tends downward after leaving the course of a builet always tends downward after leaving the sistoil A. Yes, sir. Yet you know that the pistol you fired hit Hussey about he centre of the abdonen.

Haim denied the truth of the testimony given by several of the witnesses. He answered rapidly and sometimes heedlessly the questions put to him, so that he was sometimes led astray by the cross-examination. Colonel Fellows asked:

Q.-Were you on police duty that night? A,-I am always in police duty. on police duty.

Q.—Were you on police duty when you went into those liquor stores for drinks? A.—I was not in uniform.

Q.—But you were on police duty, were you? A.—(Hesitatingly) Yes, sir.

Judge Cowing put a few pointed questions.

Q-How was Hussey dressed that night! A.-He had no coat, no hat, no shoes and no stockings.
Q-And no weapon! A.-No, sir.
Q-When you fired the third shot where was Hussey's hands! A.-They were beside him as he rau.
Q-Then you were not in fear of any weapon! A.-I don't now about that. know about that.

Q-Were you afraid of any weapon! A.-Well, I was afraid of one of the missiles.

Q-Were you afraid of him, you being twenty-six years of age and he fifty-nine; you armed with a pistol and he without a weapon! A.-Well, I don't know as I was.

The counsel summed up the case, the argument of Colonel Fellows being especially eloquent and earnest. The case will go to the jury to-day.

CHARGED WITH A HEINOUS CRIME. TRYING A BROOKLYN CHURCH USHER.

Miss Frankic Bell, was begun in the Court of Sossions in Brooklyn yesterday. The case was opened by Assistant District-Attorney Clarke. Miss Bell, who is nearly thirty years oid and rather unprepossessing in appearance, was the first witness. She testifled that one Sunday last fail, while living with her brother in Hancock-st., she went, in company with Mamie Swift, to Dr Linking's Tabernacle by a rapid transit train in Atlan. to submit to an operation and the result was that she went to the house of Mrs. Ellen Woods, and afterward to Mrs. Marie Jahn. When her case became critical she confessed the facts.

On the cross-examination Miss Bell told how one Sunday after service at the Tabernacle, she and Bliven came to this city and had dinner at Parker's. They afterward went to a house in Twenty-eighth-st and had a chieken supper there. By persistent questioning the witness, with many blushes, told how she sat at the table in dishabilite, but when a waiter and a district messenger boy were in the room she concealed herself in the closet. She claimed that she was under the influence of liquor at the time. She professed that she felt shame and contrition for her actions, but two days later she wrote a gay letter to Biven, urging him to call on her and take her riding. Several other letters were put in to show how the withess really felt at time.

She testified, further, that when she first met Ellven she thought him a religious man, but she changed her mind when he refused to marry her. But she did not think his conduct was religious when he took her to the house in Twenty-eighth-st.

Before the Grand Jury Miss Bell testified that Bliven wanted to perform the operation on her himself, but yesterday she denied this and claimed that the stenographer had not quoted her correctly.

Another session of the inquiry conducted by Methodist ministers in Brooklyn, regarding the charges that the Rev. C. W. Millen is guilty of imprudent and immoral conduct, was held yesterlay in the Washington Street Church. The time was occupied in the examination of Millie Joy, one of the two hoston women with whom Mr. Millen's name was unpleasantly coupled. She was called as a witness for the defence, as she would not testify for the prosecution. Her evidence in substance was that on Saturday, August 13, she saw Mr. Millen at Croscent Beach. On cross examination the witness contradicted herself several times, and finally refused to testify at all. She said she was going back to Boston, but she might go back to Brooklyn next week. She claimed that she had to be at home every Friday to feed her canary; and despite the protestations of the ministers and counsel, away she went from the church. In consequence of this the trial was adjourned until to day.

RESTORING A CONVICT TO LIBERTY.

Alfred L. Burgess, who was sentenced in June, 1986 by Judge Cowing, to six years and eight months in the State Prison, and who was granted a new trial by the Supreme Court, General Term, was discharged on his own recognizance yesterday by Judge Gildersleeve on the application of District-Attorney Martine. Burgess was indicted with Anna Mulholland, his sister in law, on a charge of administering potson to Mary Burgess, the wife of one of the defendants and the sister of the other. The General Term decided that there was not sufficient proof that the substance administered was Burgess has been in jail for nearly two years. His wife begged for his release. The chaplain of the Tombs and others joined in the request and his employer said that he would again receive him into his service.

TO HAVE A CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION. Some prominent New-York merchants are taking steps toward arranging for a fitting celebration in this city of the 100th anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington as the first President of the Republic. General Washington took the oath of office on April 30, 1789, at Nassau and Wall sis. It is proposed to invite the Governors of the thirteen original States to be present on the anniversary day next April and to have a celebration of the contennal, something like the one in Philadelphia last September. The Legislature of Tennessee has already passed resolutions in which such a celebration is comended, and a great National exhibition is suggested as a feature of it. > RECALLING THE DAYS OF TWEED. A SUIT DECIDED AGAINST THE CITY-POINTS MADE

BY JUSTICE PATTERSON. A decision rendered by Justice Patterson of the Supreme Court, in the suit in which the city authorities sought to recover from the Tenth National Bank $66,301 36, the interest on balances deposited by the city, gives judgment against the city for $358,849 23 on a counter claim for money advanced by the bank at various times to the commission which had charge of the building of the new County Court House in the days of the Tweed Ring.

The appropriations for the city government for 1871 were exhausted several months before the end of the year and funds were advanced by various banks to certain departments. As security the lenders took assignments of the particular claims for the payment of which the sums were borrowed. There was no authority in law for any of these transactions, but the Legislature, by an act passed in 1872, legalized them, and authorized the ropayment of all such loans. This law has been pronounced constitutional by the courts. The only question at issue in the present case was as to whether the banks acted in good faith in making the advances. Tweed, Ingersoil and Connolly were directly of the bank and it was contended that the bank could not recover on its counters laint because of the fraud that these men perpetrated in connection with the building of the Court House and other schemes.

It was conceded that Mr. bliss, the president of the bank who make the advances, had no showledge of the fraudulent transactions, and the Judge helds that the defendant acted in good faith. He says it is not proved that Tweed or Connolly was connected in any way with the arrangement by which the money was advanced to Ingersoil and that it is shown that the latter acted not for the bank but solely as agent for the Court House Commissioners. Judgment is given for the bank on its counter-claim for $400.103 25, less the amount due the plaintiff on the cause of action set forth in the complaint with taxable costs only, and allowing the city also the benefit of interest on its claim by computational mutually agreed upon.
